University of Glasgow, charity number SC004401

Caerlaverock Castle, Dumfries & Galloway

The MSc Tourism, Heritage & Development builds your understanding of these sectors. You will examine these three areas both individually and collectively, taking an in-depth look at the relationships between them.

You will be taught through a combination of lectures, seminars, tutorials, field-work and project work. The programme is deeply international in context and also offers case studies and fieldtrips in Scotland and the north of England. The programme is 12 months full-time or 24 months part-time.

You will have the opportunity to study alongside students on related postgraduate programmes. We can help you arrange a summer work placement with a variety of tourism and heritage related organisations.

The University of Glasgow

Founded in 1451, the University of Glasgow is the fourth oldest university in the English-speaking world. Today we are a broad-based, research intensive institution with a global reach.

Dumfries Campus

This degree is taught at our Dumfries Campus in south west Scotland. You will benefit from the academic excellence of one of the world's top universities in a friendly campus setting, surrounded by unique environmental resources, a lively arts scene and rich cultural heritage.
